For maximum coverage and reduce the interference, here are some guidelines you should consider when you place the base unit,

- place it at a convenient, high, and central location with no obstructions between the handset and base unit in an indoor environment.
- place it away from electronic appliances such as televisions, microwave ovens, radios, personal computers, wireless devices or other cordless phones.
- avoid facing radio frequency transmitters, such as external antennas of mobile phone cell stations.
- avoid plugging it into the same circuit as other major household electrical appliances because of the potential for interference. Try moving the appliance or the base unit to another power outlet.

If the reception for a base unit location is not satisfactory, move it to another location for better reception.
Depending on the surrounding conditions as well as spatial and structural factors, the range may be reduced. The range indoors is normally less than outdoors.

If the mains adapter fails, it must be replaced by an identical model.
If not connected to the mains power or if there is a mains power failure, telephones that use cordless handsets will not work.

You will then be unable to make or receive calls in the event of an emergency. This is why we recommend that you also keep a conventional telephone – one that doesn't require a power supply – as a backup.

! Do not use your telephone to notify a gas leak when standing in the vicinity of the leak.

It is recommended that you avoid using this device during electrical storms. Do not attempt to open the batteries, as they contain chemical substances. In the event of leakage, avoid contact with the skin, eyes, nose and mouth. In the event of contact, rinse the affected part for about twenty minutes with running water and seek urgent medical attention. Clean the product with absorbent paper or a dry cloth and contact your reseller for replacement batteries.
